Indianapolis says behold a metropolitan function and the State responds with true Hoosier spirit. Their confidence is not betrayed. New York or Chicago never presented a more meritorious Horse Show than was opened at the Festival grounds yesterday afternoon. Nor do the Carnival features disappoint in any particular.

You'll attend, of course, but before proceeding westward we suggest that you'll find it worth your while to visit an exhibition of Parisian gowns and wraps in our green room, also the beautifully decorated Art Floor with its rich hangings, bric-a-brac, pictures and rugs. Stole Lead Pipe from House Almost Before Occupants' Eyes.

A little mulatto, armed with a sack tools, called at the residence of Thomas L. Mrs. Sulliwan had not been apprised by her husband that repairs were needed and she asked the negro a number of questions. He seemed to answer them satisfactorily. Mrs. Sullivan went to other parts of the house and in about an hour returned to see how the egro was progressing with his work. Walking into the laundry she found him and several sections of lead pipe miss-A rusty hatchet was found on the or. Mrs. Sullivan notified the police and Bicycle Policemen Morgan and Simon, who onded, made a search of the neighborhood, but were unable to locate the negro.

Fine Picture on View.

Art lovers of the city will be interested in the painting which will be opened for display to-day in the art department of L. S. Ayres & Co. The painting is the work of a French artist, Hubert C. Delorme, and by Mr. F. E. Galbraith, of Toronto, by whom it is displayed. The painting, Le Forgerons (The Blacksmith), is a and character and it is hard for the spectator to realize that the picture is without real life. The figure of the blacksmith, as e bends over the blazing fire, is wonderfully lifelike. The glow from the fire falls over his head and arms, and brings out the strong lines of his face and the brawny nuscles of his arms. It is in the artist's treatment of the light and shadows that he picture is wonderful, for such realistic ortrayal of light and atmosphere has selom been seen. The sun shines brightly brough the window at the rear of the ene, while from the foreground falls the wish light of day. Over all is the reddish glow of the charcoal fire, gleaming and thezing in a realistic manner. The arist has displayed a wonderful power and is picture has received the highest proise wer it has been exhibited. It is cerainly well worth going to see.

Corpses Tied in Sacks Located the Vicinity of the Central Medical College.

THEORY OF THE DETECTIVES

ALL FOUR BODIES IDENTIFIED BY THE RELATIVES.

Grand Jury Begins Its Investigation and Is Instructed by Judge Alford-The Developments.

LOCAL STOCK EXCHANGE Amos Smith, of No. 642 Chestnut street, on his way to work, yesterday morning about 6 o'clock, partially cleared up the mystery of the bodies recently spirited away from the medical colleges. He found two bodies tied in sacks in a dry goods box at the side of Hibben, Hollweg & Co.'s store, corner Meridian and Georgia streets. The same young man in walking farther south noticed two more bodies at the rear door of the Central Medical College. Suspecting that the sacks contained human bodies he immediately notified the police department. Operator Zaiser at once sent Bicycle Policemen Duncan and Losh to look after the bodies. Losh rode to the corner of Meridian and Georgia streets, where he found the two poration of the new Indianoplis Stock Exbodies. Duncan rode to the rear of the change were filed yesterday with the secmedical college and located two more. The retary of state, and yesterday afternoon four bodies were sent to the city morgue, a meeting of the members was held at where they were positively identified as which officers were elected and business hose for whom relatives have been making an unceasing search in the past two weeks. The bodies are those of Miss Glendore Gates, daughter of Wesley Gates, of Irvington, Mrs. Johanna Stilz, Mrs. Katherine Gates, of the firm of Harry B. Gates & Doehring and Wallace Johnson. How the bodies came to be in the dry goods box is not known, but it is said by members of the detective department that the filing of uneasiness among members of the various section of the city. The two grandsons of Mrs. Johanna Stilz quickly identified their grandmother. W. T. Long, brother-in-law of Wallace Johnson, could not properly identify the body and Rufus Cantrell was brought over from the jail. Cantrell turned the head over and displayed the crushed skull. This did not fully satisfy Long. The bandages around one leg that was crushed by a train were undone and the splintered leg was exposed. There seemed to be no. doubt then in the mind of Mr. Long but that the body was that of his brother-inlaw. The body of Mrs. Doehring lay at the morgue until late yesterday afternoon, as the relatives live several miles from the city and could not easily come into town. It is the opinion of several doctors who examined the bodies yesterday that they have not been in the regular pickling solution for

After the bodies were fully identified the thoughts of the crowd in the morgue The capital stock is $100,000, and the directors are William C. The bodies were returned was because he had captital stock is $50,000, and the directors with any of the colleges that if the bodies are George H. Lynas, Carl A. G. Frisius and James F. It was said late Saturday night that the widow would stop prosecution if the body was returned. Wesley Gates and the relatives of Mrs. Doehring and Mrs. Siltz had also consulted attorneys with a view of bringing suit against the Central Medical College. They had evidence based on assertions made by Rufus Cantrell that the bodies sought were taken to the Central Medical College. It is now thought that the college authorities had heard that the relatives would drop the prosecution if the bodies were returned W. T. Long and Charles Johnson, of Chicago, a brother of Wallace Johnson, declared that they would not drop the prosecution of those connected with the college. Neither Mr. Gates not the Stilz boys would say yesterday what action they would pursue since the bodies they have been seeking have been returned. It was said yes-

GRAND JURY INVESTIGATION.

Instructions Given by Judge Alford-

Detectives Examined. The Marion county grand jury yesterday began an investigation of the grave robbing cases, after being specially instructed by Judge Alford, of the Criminal Court. Judge

"Gentlemen, you are now about to begin it. He said nothing had been found to show that there had been an increase in the cost of production or transportation, should first take up the investigation of the investigation of crimes committed in New planes at $155 and up at Wulchner's, and it was simply a case of profit taking. | all persons charged with the crime of disturbing graves, stealing corpses and of all persons aiding in the concealment of corpses so stolen in Marion county. "I charge you that if the evidence shows to you that any person or persons have counseled, encouraged, hired or commanded, or otherwise procured graves to be disturbed, corpses to be stolen or concealed, or aided in the concealment of any corpse, they should be indicted and charged as principals in said crime.

"I instruct you that you should indict no man on mere suspicion alone. The law presumes every man innocent until he is proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. I do not mean that you shall be satisfied of his guilt beyond a reasonable doubt before voting to indict, for if there is in your mind from the evidence a strong probability of a conviction you should indict. No man should be indicted without evidence, and then ask or expect this court to compel such person to show that he is not guilty, and to show who is; that is not the law now and would not be the law upon the trial of said case before this court. "I instruct you to indict every man that the evidence shows has counseled, encouraged, hired or commanded or otherwise procured any of the crimes above mentioned to be committed, and all persons committing said crimes; this will be your full duty, and then leave the responsibility of their conviction to this court and the prosecuting attorney of this court and the petit jury of this court. "No man should escape indictment by reason of his good reputation and standing in this community. One may be guilty of the crimes named and not be near the graves disturbed or the corpses stolen. It is sufficient if the evidence shows that he counseled, encouraged, hired, commanded or in any manner procured the crime to be committed. In law he is a principal. "If you have evidence showing that any manager, watchman or guard in any cemetery or burying grounds has knowingly and purposely absented himself from his post of duty to enable any person to commit said crime, he should be indicted as a principal to said crime. "If evidence is presented to you showing that after a commission of said crime any person with a knowledge of the commission of said crimes by others gave aid or in any manner have done acts to conceal the crime and to prevent the arrest and conviction of the principals, he should be indicted as an accessory after the fact to the crime committed by the principal. "Believing you will be fair and just to all persons charged with this crime, I also charge you that you must be equally just to the people of this county. Believing you, as law-abiding citizens, will do your full duty, and that the prosecutor of this county will do all in his power to aid you, now leave this investigation with you. The grand jury began its investigation with the testimony of Detectives Asch and Manning. They told the complete story of their investigation of the cases and the

Rufus Cantrell, who confessed to robbing graves and implicated the others, will be before the grand jury this morning. It is expected that his examination will last at least a half day and perhaps all day. Then the other negroes held will be brought before the grand jury. Following them, Dr. J. C. Alexander and Dr. F. M. Wright, who are charged with direct-M. Wright, who are charged with directing the grave robbers, will be summoned, suits against the medical colleges caused and then the additional testimony of others implicated or supposed to be connected directly or indirectly with the robberies

Cass Connaway, attorney for Cantrell, Isham Donnel, Walter Daniel and Sam Martin, sald he wanted his clients to be witnesses against the other men. He said been little to investigate, and he wants them to make a "clean breast" of everything. He said he had assured his clients that nothing could save them from the penitentiary and all they could do was to try and get the minimum sentence. The members of the grand jury are: Peter Bank, Wayne township; William J. Schliecher, Warren township; Talbott R. Moore, Pike township; John Schley, James W. Chapin and Charles Kahl, Indian-
